Keen Interest In Water Project Meeting Held Here Saturday

Keen interest was shown in the irrigation project by attendance at the meeting held here Saturday in Campbell's Hall. Presided over by Reeve Griffin the meeting heard from Mayor F L Watts, of High River, Dr A F Wilson of Carmangay, both who told of the steps being taken by their respective districts to secure irrigation. The latter said that Carmangay farmers had turned down a scheme some years ago but now realized what a an irrigation project would be to the district. Mayor Watts stressed the fact that helping the farmers was a direct benefit to merchants and business men for a prosperous district made a thriving town.

The aims of the council were explained by President Baker, the secretary of the council and Mr Russel of the P. F. R. A. Board. It was finally decided to secure more information from the province, who now have all the maps of the quarter sections taken at the time the survey was made. The local committee were authorized to proceed with the co operation of the Irrigation council and and secure full information.

Members of the tour motored to Carmangay and visited the proposed Barons-Carmangay district. It is planned to take water from the Lethbridge Northern ditch at a point south of Barons. The canal will carry water in two ditches approximately 12 miles North and irrigate in the neighborhood of 15000 acres.

Directed by residents affected, including Jas McNaughton, A F Wilson, Jas Davey, O B Smith, J A Gow, and H S Parker, the tour visited abandoned farms and farm homes, weed infested lands and drifted fences all waiting to be reclaimed by irrigation.

The proposed Champion irrigation district was also driven through. It is planned to take water from the Highwood River at High River run it into Frank Lake then run it in a long canal to the Champion district. It is estimated that around 50000 acres of dry land could be brought under the ditch in this way.

Champion district has raised $721.65 towards the Red Cross drive for funds to relieve distress among those who suffered through the war. This includes a cheque for $110 from Mr Alex McDougall, the proceeds of the sale of a prize heifer sold at the Calgary show.

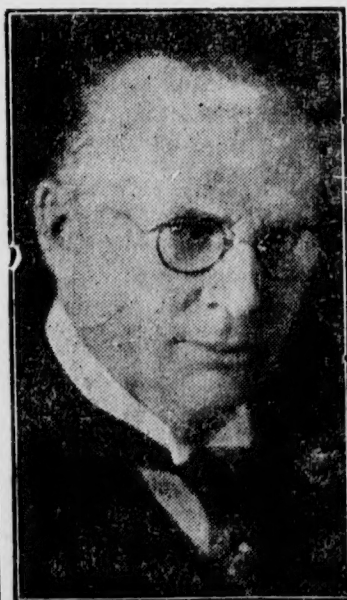

This is very gratifying and with some districts still not canvassed the fund will continue to grow. Send in your donation to Clarke Rhodes at once.

Shipment of supplies for the Finnish Red Cross in anticipation of a serious need in that country following Russia's invasion will be ready for shipment as soon as possible. Norman Sommerville K. C. national chairman of the Red Cross told the public Monday

Because it is on a war footing at present the Canadian Red Cross is able to assist with hospital and medical supplies, stores of which have been created by voluntary workers throughout Canada. Among these workers have been Finnish people living in Canada.

Among the best and most zealous workers among Red Cross women have been Canadian Finnish women. 200 Finnish women have turned in a ton of material in the form of bandages, garments and other supplies since Canadians entered the war.

The foundation of Red Cross rests on the principle of assistance where it is needed, no matter what the cause.

Rt Hon R.B. Bennett former Prime Minister of Canada has returned to Canada to confer with Red Cross officials. Mr Bennett is taking charge of Canadian Red Cross work abroad.

Air Field For Kirkcaldy Mooted

Empire Training Scheme May Be Brought Close To Home

During the past few days there has been increasing talk of the air field at Kirkcaldy being reopened for the purpose of the Empire Training scheme. Nothing definite can be secured but there is good prospect of the field not only being reopened but buildings erected.

Under the terms of the Empire Training scheme details of which are kept confidential Canada is to provide the air training for the pilots of England, Australia and New Zealand. Canada and it is understood the various provinces will take actual management, will provide shelters and equipment necessary to the air fields. Some are to be erected between Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge and it is only natural that the field at Kirkcaldy will be considered.

Just what it would mean locally cannot be stated but if a real training centre were established, similar to what the writer has seen in the east then it would certainly be a great benefit locally. If a school were established it would mean the building of dormitories, officers mess and other buildings. Elaborate quarters are established at Trenton and at Barriefield for the airmen and it is taken that similar quarters if less expensive, would be necessary here.

Interest in the project will be keen if it is possible to secure such training ground for this district.

Hon. Peter Dawson is touch with Edmonton over the situation and if there is any possibility of the scheme going through local readers may be assured that Champion will benefit from the field if it is possible.

Score Success For Red Cross

As their contribution to the Red Cross the Champion Dramatic and Social Club presented the three act mystery play, "The Yellow Shadow" before a capacity and appreciative audience Wednesday night. The production under the direction of Miss Grace Elmore dramatic instructor at the high school, was one of those plays in which interest is held in the story until the last curtain. Space will not permit us to elaborate upon the individual roles.

Carmangay

The senior group of the CGI T presented a program on Thursday evening last in the United Church to raise funds to carry their work. Rev T Taylor was chairman, and the leader, Miss Anderson helped the girls. Accompanied on the piano Mrs A Smith the group rendered several choruses. Junita, Over the Rainbow and Follow the Gleam. Three act plays were enjoyed by the audience. The Mock Trial, being the outstanding effort. Gladys Leonard sang Down Mexico Way. Geneva Brandvold gave a piano solo, Orville Smith and Laura Brandvold played a pianoforte duet which was greatly appreciated. The girls added more than $10 to their treasury by their effort.

Parents of children attending grades 1 to 3 in Miss Ruth Anderson's room and grades 4 to 6 in Miss Geraldine Farmer's room, had an opportunity last Wednesday to inspect the work done on project during the past three months and also to enjoy programs presented by the children. The younger children under Miss Anderson's care had studied a storekeeping project they had been engaged in. Commendable neatness was evident in all the bookwork displayed for the parents' inspection.

In Miss Farmer's room the children received their parents wearing Indian dresses and costumes. A large teepee constructed from gunny sacking and decorated with Indian motifs occupied considerable floor space and towered to the ceiling of the room. Songs concerning the life of the Indian were sung.

Lunch was served by the girls from both rooms who donned dainty aprons for the purpose and proved to be excellent hostesses, seeing to it that parents were well supplied with lemonade, sandwiches and cookies.

The Ladies Aid of the United Church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs Mrs H Morrison on Friday afternoon. The main business was the election of officers for 1940. H Morrison was elected President. Mrs T Taylor vice President. Mrs A Lawrence treasurer and Mrs E Gibbie secretary.

Reverend and Mrs T Taylor enjoyed a week end visit from their son Lester of Milk River.

Vol. 3 Thur. Dec 7. No. 45
Jock McIntyre, Editor

The irrigation meeting held last Saturday was indeed a success and has aroused a lot of interest in the plan but lets get hot on this subject folks it will mean the difference between a desert and a garden spot for our district in a few years time. Lets all boost for this move ment.

For this Christmas let us suggest a Westinghouse radio a gift that will last for years and give the whole family enjoyment.

Stattos are back from a short trip down Spokane way. They report a fine trip.

A new folding card table is a very appropriate gift and they are very reasonable too.

The world of wonders never ceases and as proof we submit the fact that Geo Taylor attend the old timers dance in Lomond last week.

For Him we would suggest a smokers stand, a Rolls razor, a wrist watch, a 22 rifle or a set of box wrenches are all practical gifts that he will appreciate.

Cool Bros. Alex Latiff and W. Anderson were Calgary visitors on Wednesday and they took in the hockey game.

Pyrex ware is the ideal gift for all occasions and Christmas is no exception. Our stock is complete.

Speaking of hockey about Christmas time the wave length of CJOJ will be changed so you can hear the Mc Drg. dealers broadcast and we hope it will bring you enjoyment. We have five tickets that are available for all Lethbridge home games. If you wish to procure the use of these tickets at any time let us know as soon as possible.

Irrigation Project

The Chronicle is very pleased with the response to the meeting held on Saturday in connection with the irrigation project. While the information secured by the farmers was not complete and the matter is still considered yet it shows that the people of the district are alive to the need for taking advantage of any scheme for the improvement of the district.

Much information was given by the officials of the Irrigation council from Lethbridge but the Chronicle feels that Reeve Griffin and his committee are on the right track when they seek to secure an independent irrigation project. With three millions or more tied up in the Lethbridge it might appear that it would be some time before a local project would be really pushed by this organization. Certainly full and sincere co-operation should be extended to the officials but it will be the responsibility of the of the local committee to press for action.

It may take some time to secure sufficient information to determine whether the district requires irrigation but we see no reason why we should not all boost for this project, which will cost farmers nothing, until it is proven that it is impracticable.

The Chronicle continues to support the local committee in pressing for complete information from the government on this important project.

The Plight Of Finland

There have been a few even in this district who could not see why Canada should sacrifice her youth the flower of her manhood for the defense of Poland and especially as she had been conquered practically before the war started. These same people are changing their attitude and are realizing that if Canada does not take her rightful part in the defense of decency it might come about that we are defending our very homes. The latest move that has helped to bring home to a thinking people of the danger is the overrunning of Finland and the bombing and killing of defenceless women and children not to speak of the ruin left in their wake.

The only reason for the attack on Finland was that Russia wanted to establish military and naval bases on Finnish territory. We see no more reason for Russia wanting advance posts on the Baltic and North Sea than she needs them on her eastern boundary of her vast Union in which case she might easily ask for territory on North America to protect her shipping in the Pacific. With only 35 miles separating Russia and America the implication is very pointed to say the least.

Red Cross Notes

For those who have unfavorable comments to spread regarding the activities of the Canadian Red Society, we quote circular No 18, in part, from the Canadian Red Cross, Albert Division.

"In the first Great War the Canadian Red Cross Society provided comforts for soldiers amounting in value to approximately twenty millions of dollars. In addition it provided funds amounting to more than nine millions of dollars for supplying of hospitals and hospital care for Canadian soldiers. Another six million, two hundred and fifty thousand dollars were used to assist the British Red Cross Society to care for British Soldiers.

Despite the stupendous sum of money spent by the Canadian Red Cross society during the first Great War to alleviate suffering and provide comforts Not One Cent was received by the society for anything supplied to the troops. Its services were supplied freely and without charge. Indeed if any soldier did pay for a pair of socks — and there is no evidence that this is so — it is because they were sold by a dishonest person who simply pocketed the money for his own use."

Harping On An Old String

Critics of late have been harping on that age old string, that if all depositors in all the banks demanded their money back from the banks all at one time, the demands could not be met. That might be classed as a theoretical truism; but people do not expect banks to keep money lying idle, earning nothing and then paying interest on them. Depositors can safely be presumed to be intelligent people, who know that the Bank to which they lend their savings will put those savings to work; and all the time keeping enough money on hand to meet all likely or even emergent demand.

And further, any one of Canada's Chartered banks, were to close out and wind up its business, would be able to pay off its creditors — depositors and note holders — and still have something left over for the shareholders who invested their money in the banks capital stock.

Experience has shown that under normal conditions only a certain percentage of deposits will be demanded from day to day and if sufficient cash that is, legal tender, be held to meet this average demand — with, of course an additional amount in case of an unforeseen call plus a further amount so invested that it can promptly be turned into ready cash, in case of need, the balance can safely be employed in discounting trade paper and in making loans provided such loans are wisely made and there is adequate turnover.

The chartered banks to-day have approximately 70 per cent of its liabilities in quick assets made up of cash, government bonds and call loans etc,

New Songs of Canadian Life Set to tunes from the Old World

Two pages of the new book of Canadian ballads by John Murray Gibbon and published by the Ryerson Press, Toronto.

J. M. GIBBON

Singing of Canada -- sixty new songs of Canada have come to life over the past few months and now they are given to the world in John Murray Gibbon's newest book "New World Ballads" which has just come from the Ryerson Press, Toronto. It is a most attractive little book, beautifully printed and illustrated and for each ballad there is a pleasant singable old tune that Mr. Gibbon has dug from somewhere out of the past.

The songs are gathered into ten groups which, in a general way, cover different periods of Canadian history such as "The Pioneers" and "Settlement & Independence", while others sing of mountains, rivers and prairies -- Then too, there are ballads of the canoe, of the trail and of the seasons -- in short it is a very comprehensive book of Canadian song which should meet with a hearty welcome from Canadians everywhere.

The tunes selected and printed with the ballads are lovely old melodies which have been brought to Canada by settlers from the British Isles and from Europe. Some of these are dance tunes, some are tunes of which the words are no longer generally known or which belong to a language that is not English. Mr. Gibbon has written the ballads especially for these tunes.

The writing of ballads to fit old and well loved tunes dates from the time of Shakespeare. When Queen Elizabeth came to the throne of England in 1558, the balladmonger sang at the fair, the words of broadsheets which he sold for a penny. Shakespeare knew them, and in the snatches of song in "Hamlet", "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and "A Winter's Tale" revealed how much he owed to the ballad singers. Up to the time of Oliver Cromwell, lyric poetry was not yet considered as something apart from music, so we find Christopher Marlowe, Ben Jonson, George Withers, John Donne and Robert Herrick, all great poets, still writing verses to old tunes. Later John Gay took tunes from France as well as England, and we find succeeding poets, including Burns, Scott, Stevenson and Moore writing ballads based on a tune.

New World Ballads is an ideal collection of songs to make the music hour a memorable one in schools and camps as well as in homes.
